

Breaking Ground

The house is sited tucked down into the hillside — and is broken into sections and planes at different setbacks that don't feel too large. Paradoxically, the facade (shown) and yellow cedar trellis cantilevered roof balconies and sheathed exterior walls from

VANCOUVER ARCHITECT CLINTON CUDDINGTON'S PASSION PROJECT NETS HIM A DRAMATIC FAMILY HOME WITH SOME SERIOUS ENVIRONMENTAL CRED.

Text by ELLEN HIMELFARB | Photographs by JANIS NICOLAY

SEE SOURCE GUIDE